Vol.15

No.40

Providence, R.I.. Laments the division in the anti-slavery ranks. Gives a general and feeling survey of the situation of slaves and of free colored people in the country, and of the apathy of the different classes of citizens. Concludes that there are individuals who take a sacrificial interest in the cause, and emphasizes the good that can be done by influencing children and youth in the direction of anti-slavery principles. The addressee's letter, respecting help for a fair in New York, has not yet been read to the Providence Ladies' Anti-Slavery Society.

To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

Providence, R.I., The writer says he has a son dying of consumption. Does not want his last letter sent to Bristol in answer to Rev. Armstrong's letter. Claims Rev. May misinterpreted the words "sometimes spoke against the usual observance of the Sabbath." The writer meant that it was not usual for lecturers to speak on secular subjects on Sunday. Differs with Rev. May on the proper observance of Sunday. Thinks Abolition doctrines should be taught along with ordinary Christian doctrines. The writer will not stand in the way of the Bazaar and will urge others to support the Abolitionists.
